

KAP's comments on progress of KIX access bridge recovery

Today, the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism and West Nippon Expressway Company Limited made an announcement on the progress of recovery works carried out on the access bridge connecting Kansai International Airport to the mainland, which has been damaged from a tanker collision during Typhoon Jebi.

Yoshiyuki Yamaya, Representative Director and CEO, and Emmanuel Menanteau, Representative Director and Co-CEO, Kansai Airports, made comments as follows:

“Traffic on the access bridge has been limited since September 4, 2018 when a tanker collided with the bridge in the wake of Typhoon Jebi. The hard work of everyone involved, however, has pushed ahead the recovery works, and an additional lane will reopen in March, which is expected to improve traffic.

Despite the limited access, we have been welcoming many airport users without major traffic congestion even during the year-end and New Year busy period. This is all thanks to the generous cooperation of our guests and everyone involved.

It will take some more time until the full recovery of the bridge. We hope the works will progress smoothly as planned. Thank you for your understanding.”

Kansai Airports was established by a consortium made up of VINCI Airports and ORIX Corporation as its core members. Kansai Airports took over the operations of Kansai International Airport (“KIX”) and Osaka International Airport (“ITAMI”) from New Kansai International Airport Company (“NKIAC”) and has been operating the two airports since April 1, 2016.

Kansai Airports Kobe, Kansai Airports’ wholly-owned subsidiary, took over the operations of Kobe Airport (“KOBE”) from Kobe City and started its business as an operating company on April 1, 2018.

Under the concept of “One Kansai Airports Group”, Kansai Airports group strives to continuously improve its services for all airport guests through appropriate investments and efficient operations, with safety and security being the top priority. Kansai Airports group aims to maximize the potential of the three airports, for the benefit of the communities they serve.
